

---

Teaching ICTs online/on-line teaching

---

A seminar, organised in English, is dedicate to everybody who is interested in on-line education. Dr. Oliver (USA, North Carolina State University) served as coordinator for his master's degree program in Instructional Technology during a transition in which the program moved from face-to-face courses to entirely online courses. He will discuss challenges faced and interventions employed to move a very hands-on, ICT-oriented program to the distance education mode. He will also share sample online course sites in Moodle to illustrate common course structures, as well as examples of how program faculty are employing emerging course tools to provide a quality course experience for learners (e.g., Voicethread, FlipGrid).