
Guest Lecture Series by prof. Caterina Fiorilli

Guest Lecture Series by prof. Caterina Fiorilli

The Department of Psychology is pleased to welcome Prof. Caterina Fiorilli from LUMSA University (Rome, Italy), who joins us for a one-week Erasmus+ teaching mobility starting March 23rd.

Caterina Fiorilli is a Full Professor of Developmental and Educational Psychology and the Director of the Department of Human Sciences at LUMSA. Her research focuses on teacher well-being and educational environments, with a primary emphasis on preventing burnout and fostering sustainable teaching practices.

We cordially invite students and staff to the following sessions:

LUMSA: A Historic University in Rome – From Origins to New Directions

An introduction to psychology at LUMSA University, its educational focus, and key research themes. This session is ideal for students considering Erasmus+ mobility and colleagues interested in new scientific collaborations.

When: Monday, March 23rd | 16:30–17:30
Where: Room M103

Understanding Teacher Well-Being: Dimensions, Demands, and Resources

Prof. Fiorilli will present her long-term research on teachers' professional development. The lecture will cover teacher well-being from both theoretical and empirical perspectives.

When: Wednesday, March 25th | 15:30–16:30
Where: Room R016

Everybody is welcome!